TITUSVILLE, Pa., September 21, 1870.
A. R. WILLIAMS, Esq., Titusville, Pa.—Dear Sir: We take pleasure in adding our name to the long roll of testimonials already given in advocacy of the merits of the Improved Double-Ribbed Furnace Grates.
We have had them in constant use for a year, and during that time (although our furnaces represent more than five hundred feet of surface) we have not yet lost a single bar by burning out or warping.
Their advantages to us, in economizing fuel, ease of management and superior durability, warrant us in recommending them as fully up, if not superior, to the merits claimed for them. We would use no other. Truly yours,
B. E. MORELAND & CO.
The substitution of this Grate will generally enable the consumer to raise sufficient heat with nut coal, or even slack, when formerly the best lump was necessary; when, tan, bark, sawdust, etc., is burned it will be found on trial to be almost indispensible. No change in bearers required in any furnace. All orders will receive prompt attention.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Its General Observance—Pulpit Discourses, etc.

The observance of our National and State Thanksgiving was very general in our city. All places of business were closed, at the hour of morning service, and the churches where worship was held were filled with attentive congregations. In the afternoon the dedication of the new Odd Fellows Hall attracted a large assembly, and the occasion was deeply interesting. The Soldiers' Orphans' school partook of a bountiful dinner, and the exercises at Study Hall were of a very agreeable cast. The event of the evening was the concert of the M. E. Sabbath School at Corinthian Hall, which attracted an immense audience. We present as full a report of those interesting proceedings as our space will admit, and publish the sermons above referred to, entire:

"PRAISE AND THANKSGIVING"—SERMON BY REV. HENRY FURDON, AT ST. JAMES' MEMORIAL CHURCH.

TEXT.—Bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me, bless His holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits.—Psalm CIII, ver. 1 and 2.

We are assembled once again, on this our National Holiday, not as the representatives of a political party, but as members of a great Nation, to testify our love and gratitude to Almighty God for the crowning blessings of the year. In harmony with Divine truth, our Church indeed teaches us to lift up our voices at all times and unitedly to praise and bless Him, who sends us "rain from Heaven and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness." On every occasion of public worship she commands us to "give most humble and hearty thanks" to Almighty God, "the Father of all mercies," for "all His goodness and lovingkindness to us, and to all men," but especially, on this day of public rejoicing, she would bid us to adore and magnify His glorious Name, for the goodly heritage which He has given us; for the civil and religious privileges which we possess; for the multiplied manifestations of His favor towards us, personal, social and national, notwithstanding all our many sins and transgressions. Recognizing the wisdom and almighty power of God, she would imprint afresh upon our hearts this morning, a deep and lasting sense of the great truth, that the only security we have for the continuance of the blessings which we enjoy, consists in our acknowledgment of His sovereign and gracious Providence and in humble and holy submission to the Gospel of His Son Jesus Christ.

Called together, then, as we are by the voice of our Civil Rulers, as also, I trust by the promptings of our own hearts, let us consider the causes we have for thanksgiving, that so we may hymn forth our gratitude in that grand Eucharistic Psalm of David, "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless His holy Name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits."

In the Psalm of the text, David speaks first of personal blessings, next of national mercies, and lastly, as if unable to express adequately the thoughts of his heart, he calls upon all creatures, animate and inanimate, to bless the Lord. Following this natural division, let us begin then, with the inspired poet to bless the Lord, by recounting his personal dealings with us. Conscious of the inutility of all efforts to praise God with our lips, while our hearts are far from Him, the royal bard calls upon the soul first to bless the Lord.

Valueless and lifeless are all our songs of thanksgiving, unless the soul be in them. We must be moved, we must be stirred in our inner being, if we would render to God the homage He justly demands.

It is no light service we engage in when we worship God; much more when we thank Him for favors received, and blessings bestowed. Let our souls, accordingly, bless the Lord, and let all that is within us bless His holy name. Let memory recount His thousand acts of kindness; let imagination call up before us bright visions of the past; let reason act, and judgment discriminate; let every faculty of the mind, and affection of the soul be vocal in extolling the praises of Him "who forgiveth all thine iniquities, and healeth all thy diseases." We should not—we ought not to forget any of God's benefits; but if we cannot remember all, we should still select the most conspicuous, and make them the subject of our song. David, at least, so acts. He recounts God's mercies first to his own soul, before he passes in review His mercies to other men. He traces all his countless blessings to the right source—the forgiveness of all his sins; the healing of all his diseases; the redeeming of his life from destruction; and the crowning him with loving kindness and tender mercies. All these good things he attributes to God as the eternal fountain of every blessing. Throughout the past year, have we no mercies to be thankful for, similar to those of David? In the silent watches of the night has the thought of our sins never filled us with alarm and apprehension, and when almost overwhelmed with their weight, have we not found peace and satisfaction at the foot of the blood-stained cross? Would to God, indeed, that this feeling were more general; that we could all this day thank the Lord of all for the forgiveness of our sins. I need not remind you that sin is amongst us and in us—it is the plague spot of all our hearts, the source of our unhappiness and the fruitful cause of all our miseries.

David puts his release from sin in the very fore-ground of his song of thanksgiving, for he knows too well that all his other countless blessings are of little worth, unless he is at peace in his soul with God. Man can forgive the wrong done by his fellow-man, but God only can speak the word of forgiveness to the heart, because against Him alone have we sinned. God's attribute of forgiveness, moreover, is never exhausted. He forgives in a royal manner, blotting out, as a thick cloud, all our transgressions, and, as a cloud, our sins. "The blood of Jesus Christ, His Son"—he assures us—"cleanseth us from all sin." Not one remains to be covered or pardoned—all is freely, generously forgiven to him, who, like the penitent prodigal, owns his sins with bitter tears and returns to his father's house with the words of repentance on his lips and the grace of humility in his heart. What a cause for thanksgiving, then, have we, in the forgiving mercy of God! Daily and weekly have we made prayer and supplication unto Him, asking Him to "forgive us those things whereof our consciences were afraid, and to give us those good things which we were not worthy to ask," and He has heard our petitions in Heaven, His dwelling place, and forgiven us all our transgressions wherein we have transgressed against Him. "With angels and archangels, and with all the company of Heaven" let us then laud and magnify His glorious Name for all our spiritual mercies, the means of grace and the hope of glory; "evermore praising him and saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of hosts, heaven and earth are full of thy glory; glory be to thee, O Lord Most High."

"Who forgiveth all thine iniquities and healeth all thy diseases."

"In the midst of life we are in death;" every pulsation of the heart tolls the knell of some departing soul. Thousands of our race, since our last Thanksgiving Festival, whose promise in life was as fair as ours, have gone to their eternal account, while we still survive as the pensioners of Divine goodness. The moment we are born, we begin to die, and sooner or later disease manifests itself, to teach us that this is not our rest. We are "fearfully and wonderfully made," and require but a slight derangement of the system to bring to an instant stop the marvelous mechanism of life. If, then, during the year closing, we have enjoyed a large measure of health, God's best temporal gift to man, if we have been protected from numerous accidents and diseases, or if, when laid low on the bed of sickness, we have been again restored to vigor and strength, let us not forget the gracious Benefactor, who not only "pardoneth our iniquities, but also healeth our diseases." We honor the means used for the preservation and restoration of our health, when we honor God. Behind the food which we daily take to nourish our bodies, behind the medicines employed by the skilful physician to lessen the burden of human suffering, God acts, and without his interposition, vain is the help of man. We must make use of the means which He has placed within our power, to accomplish certain results, but when we have done all we can, we must still implore Him to bless and sanctify those means. This is true philosophy as well as true religion. Bless then, the Lord, O my soul, who healeth all thy diseases. Bless Him for the air we breathe and the sunlight we enjoy; for the vicissitudes of the seasons, the cold and heat, the spring-tide and fall. Bless Him for the glorious firmament above us and the rich verdure of earth beneath us; for the bright flowers which bloom all the summer long, and for those matchless hues which lingering autumn paints. Bless Him for the thousand sights and sounds which He spreads before us to warm the blood and kindle a glow in the cheek; to brighten this life of sorrow and of sin and make us feel better men, because surrounded by so many objects of love and admiration.

Bless Him "who redeemeth our life from destruction, and crowneth us with loving kindness and tender mercies." It is He who defends us by night and by day, who watches over us when we lie down to rest, and saves us from "the destruction that wasteth at noonday;" who weaves a garland of gladness about us, and surrounds us with the wings of His protection. He is our refuge and our fortress; our God, in Him will we trust. "Who satisfieth our mouth with good things; so that our youth is renewed like the eagle's." He provides not merely for the wants of our perishing bodies, but in His inexhaustible love has made provision also for the needs of the soul. He gives us, indeed, food and raiment, homes and families and kindred, but over and above all He has given us His Son. By the very longings and desires of our hearts, He has taught us that nothing earthly can satisfy an immortal heir; that when we have reached the highest summit of human greatness, there is still an aching void felt in the heart, which all of this world's treasure can never fill, a void which the blessed gospel of Christ alone can remove, as it shows how passing through things seen and temporal, we can lay hold of those things which are unseen and eternal. It is thus our youth is renewed like eagle's, for as that kingly bird yearly casts off its feathers and comes forth decked with new plumage to an advanced age; so the servant of God is strengthened and refreshed when wrinkles mantle the brow and gray hairs whiten the head. Bless, then, the Lord, O my soul, for all these personal benefits; and all that is within me, bless His holy Name.

"The Lord executeth righteousness and judgment for all that are oppressed; He made known His ways unto Moses, His acts unto the Children of Israel." The Psalmist passes now from private to national mercies, and begins anew to sing of God's truth and faithfulness. The long and chequered career of the Jewish people is a standing memorial of Divine goodness. Their beginning was small and insignificant, but God made of them a great nation. "He made known His ways unto Moses," and promised to bless them above all people if they would hearken to his commandments; but if they would turn aside from following after God, then He would scatter them from one end of the earth unto the other, and make them "an astonishment, a proverb and by-word among all nations," because they would not obey the voice of the Lord their God. Wonderfully has this prophecy of Israel's Lawgiver been fulfilled. Without a country or a home, the chosen race still exist, grand even in their humiliation, and destined yet to play an important part in the world's redemption, when the veil is taken away from their hearts, and they see Him whom they have pierced, Jesus of Nazareth, the Heir of David and the Son of God. Marvellous, however, as have been God's acts to the Children of Israel, His dealings with this nation have been likewise wonderful. He, indeed, must be blind, who cannot see the hand of Providence in the rapid development of this country. We have grown within a century from a few poor, struggling colonies to the proportions of a mighty nation, stretching our territorial grasp from the Arctic regions to the clime of ever-verdant vegetation, and from the shores of the Atlantic to the Pacific slopes. God has given us, truly, a land flowing with milk and honey, rich in mineral wealth and agricultural resources, possessing every variety of soil and climate, and capable of sustaining a teeming population. Born into the family of nations when the mighty elements of steam and electricity became utilized by the skill of man; born, not out of barbarism, but out of civilization, we began our career of greatness under circumstances the most auspicious. Attracted by the genius and spirit of our institutions, the under-paid artisans and laborers have come from afar to share our prosperity and augment our wealth, and are fast mingling with our nation and adding largely to our country's development. He, surely, who does not see in all these elements of greatness, in all our progress and history as a people, the stately footprints of Jehovah, must lack honesty as well as understanding, for never has a nation had God so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God has been to us since the time Washington took the sword to fight his battles and ours, the battles of the whole world for justice, right and freedom.

We stand here to-day a redeemed and regenerated nation. As with God's chosen people, so with us; it has taken years of education, millions of treasure, and worse than all, the blood of our noble sons to rescue us from the bondage of slavery, but, thank God, this morning, throughout our broad land "from the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same" every man who breathes American air and owns the American flag, is free in the eye of the law as well as in the eye of God. "Bless, then, the Lord, O my soul and forget not all His benefits." Bless Him for the peace which shines upon our borders, all the more sweet because of the sound of wailing, and lamentation and woe which comes across the seas. Bless Him for our civil, our educational, our religious blessings. May He give us grace to be true to Him and teach us to remember that our political institutions are more dependent for their stability upon Christianity than Christianity upon them. Human governments are changeable, but the truth of God will live in freshness and immortal beauty, when all this world shall be burned up and destroyed. If we would hand down unimpaired to the succeeding generations, the blessings of our Republican government, we must have a brave, virtuous and understanding people. Individual dishonesty, political corruption, national wrong will shatter into a thousand fragments the Constitution which we inherited from our fathers. Oh! that we would prove worthy to fulfill the glorious destiny allotted to us; that in coming years, far down the distant future, when you and I and all of us shall be gathered to our rest, the sentinels from the lofty citadel of our freedom may still be able to exclaim over a united land, "All's well, for God, for country and for liberty."

Bless the Lord, O my soul, for crowning the year with His goodness, in the increase of the ground and the gathering in of its fruits. Never, perhaps, in the history of our country have we had a more abundant harvest. "The clouds have dropped down their fatness," the sun has not withheld its shining; the blight, the mildew or the palm-worm have not destroyed our crops. The valleys have stood so thick with corn that our barns are filled with the golden grain. The boughs of the trees and the branches of the goodly vine, have bent beneath the crimson fruit and the purple cluster. The cattle have gone forth into "green pastures and lain down beside the still waters." The rewards of industry have been everywhere abundant, and though in this section, trade has of late decreased, from many natural causes, yet what reason for thankfulness have we, for the marked improvements and spirit of enterprise, which have characterized our city during the past year. Our growth has been truly wonderful and while giving credit to whom credit is due, let us not forget Him by whose power alone it is that we get wealth. "Bless the Lord, O my Soul, and let all that is within me, bless His Holy Name."

Bless the Lord, O my Soul, for all those His servants, who have departed this life, in His faith and fear, and especially for the good example of him who was so long identified with the interests of this place, and through whose munificence and liberality, we are largely indebted for the erection of this Church. In many respects, the late Ebenezer Brewer, of Pittsburgh, was a remarkable man, combining, in his character strict integrity with rare business qualifications. He has gone to his grave, "in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in, in his season," and has left behind the same in all ages; the unregenerate heart desires no knowledge of God's ways; and men would fain account for those things the existence of what they cannot question by the same theory that does not bring them face to face with Deity. But it is Jehovah who "hath established His throne in the Heavens," not nature. We gladly concede the prevalence of law; but law expresses only regularity in the relation of cause and effect, and cannot stand for the cause itself. We gladly hail every advance in physical science establishing the prevalence of law; for the very existence of law pre-supposes a law-giver behind and above it. Nature is nothing but a manifestation of God's power and wisdom; and the laws which govern matter are but the words of the Divine operation. "He covereth himself with light as with a garment. He spreadeth out the Heavens like a curtain; He layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters; He maketh the clouds His chariot; He walketh upon the wings of the wind."

THANKSGIVING SERMONS.

(CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.)

And because God does thus administer the government of the universe, beauty, order and harmony prevail, and innumerable blessings flow to the children of men. Surely in the adjustment of those natural forces to man's requirements, there is abundant cause for thankfulness.

How conducive, for instance, to our best interests is the regularity observable in the motions of the heavenly bodies, occasioned by that mysterious force, which binds alike the grains of sand and holds the planets in their appropriate orbits! Think how quickly silence and death would reign over this busy earth, were the wheels of nature as easily disarranged as even the most perfect machine of human contrivance. How soon might the varied seasons cease to visit us with their varied gifts, and we be left amid the scorching heat of an endless summer and surrounded by the snows of a winter forever unvisited by the breath of spring.

How terrible would be the consequences were that cohesion which binds together the particles of the earth for a single moment withdrawn, leaving those fiery demons who even now shake their prison walls to act unchecked! And were that unseen chain which binds world to world, and system to system for a moment severed, how swiftly would those circling orbs of light rush like riderless war horses to hopeless and inevitable ruin! But such can never happen, for "His Kingdom ruleth over all;" all is harmony and peace. "The morn knoweth her season, the sun his going down." Man goeth forth to his labor with cheerful heart, knowing that "while the world shall stand seed time and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter shall not leave."

That mysterious something called "law" prevails everywhere, and everywhere works for the good of man. Even things seemingly the most irregular are yet never beyond its power. The wandering waves driven by the wind and tossed still wander accordingly to their own dynamic laws, perform their mission, and sink into the ocean's breast when the storm is past. The dew drop and the torrent, the faintest breath scarce bending the summer grain, and the tempest leveling the forest trees, the feeblest ray of winter's sunlight, and the fierce heat of the volcano; all are guided and controlled by their own peculiar laws, and all combine in rendering this a world of beauty and order, a suitable habitation for man.

II. But again we discover a cause for thankfulness in God's dominion over as as moral beings.

The moral and physical worlds are intimately, indeed inseparately connected; but the physical is ever subordinate to the moral; subordinate as the body is to the soul, as matter is to mind. The universe, great as it is, was not created for its own sake, but as the dwelling place of moral beings, where they might accomplish moral ends. The beautiful and grand in nature are designed to purify and ennoble our thoughts and to lead them up to nature's God.

And the laws which govern this moral nature which God has given to man are inexorable. His dominion extends here as in nature, through sanctions as little capable of evasion. If a man runs counter to the laws which God has ordained in the world of matter he must suffer. Touch the fire, it will burn you; lay your hand upon the swiftly-revolving wheel, and you are crushed. God never interposes to save men from the pain which immediately follows the violation of physical law. And equally inexorable are the laws which govern our moral nature. 'Tis life to follow holiness: 'tis death to follow evil. And this not because God has ordained it, but because it is so by the very constitution of our being.

Men may think that they can by some means evade these penalties, but they flatter themselves in vain. As well might they expect by their prayers and tears to stay the descending avalanche or to render the torrent propitious, as to loose themselves from these chains of law which bind all things to God's eternal throne.

And the divine government in the moral world is no less a subject for thankfulness than in nature. Even as this system of beauty and order, which we call the universe, could never have existed, or existing could not continue without inexorable law, so the highest dignity of man can be attained only in accordance with the principles of his moral being. No man stumbles upon true greatness of character. It is by law that

"Men rise on stepping-stones
Of their dead selves to higher things."

And, submitting to the divine government, there are no heights of blessedness, attainable by finite creatures, to which man may not aspire. He is highly exalted in his physical organism, where every sense becomes an inlet of pleasing emotions to the soul. He is great in his intellectual powers, whereby the universe is explored and its grandeur revealed. He can trace the footsteps of the Eternal one, can think God's thoughts after him. But in man's restoration to the Divine Power we behold his highest destiny fulfilled.

And this is accomplished in strict accordance with the laws of his being. Christ came not to destroy the law, but to illustrate and enforce its requirements. The Gospel saves us by introducing a new law of faith and love into the heart, which binds the soul to a Saviour who has taken our nature and redeemed it by bearing its penalty. And the redeemed soul climbs the heights of glory, and unites in that new song before God's throne, not because God's government has relaxed, but because "it has become the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth."

III. But again the blessings resulting from the Divine Government are seen in the adjustment of natural and moral forces for the accomplishment of purposes of mercy in the earth.

There is such a thing as the philosophy of history. And we only begin to understand the records of the past, or comprehend the significance of the events which are transpiring around us, as we recognize in them the unfolding of the Divine plan.

God is truly present now, as He was among his ancient people. No divided ocean, no darkened mountain, no fiery pillar proclaims His nearness. But He is at present leading the nations up to higher and purer conceptions of Himself.

There is a growing tendency among a certain class to deny that any trace of an over-ruling Providence can be found in the universe. The disciples of Le Comte, of whom John Stewart Mill is the most illustrious, recognize no law but force. To them the tide of human events appears one vast heaving ocean, whose wild waves meet in conflict or break in despairing wailings on the shores of fate. In the shock of armies, in the rise and fall of empires, in the onward march of civilization, they recognize power, but see no guiding hand combining and controlling all events for wise and gracious ends.

But surely to the Christian God is seen in history no less than in nature. If the vastness of the ocean, the silent depths of the forest, or the music of the winds among the mountain pines, awes the soul with a sense of God's presence, surely men should bow before Him "whose judgments are abroad in the earth," and who, while the nations are too often intent only on schemes for their own aggrandizement, is working out among them His own eternal and immutable purposes. On every page of history is seen the handwriting of Him "whose kingdom ruleth over all."

How clearly the providence of God can be traced in the preparation of the world for the coming of Christ and the spread of Christianity. Long had the nations waited for Him who is "the joy of all the earth. But at length the fulness of time came. The Roman empire held universal sway. The dove-like wings of peace were folded in the Temple of Mars. The Greek language had spread from the Pyrenees to the banks of the Indus. Courts of justice were established in every town, to which the persecuted apostles could look for protection against Jewish malignity, and roads were constructed for the transportation of troops, roads that are good to this day, and along which these same apostles were enabled to travel to distant lands, preaching the Gospel of Peace. And surely also in our own brief history as a people, we can discover the guiding hand of God. Even in the discovery of this western world there is a peculiar significance. Let us go back in our imagination to the close of the 15th century. A grey-haired man stands upon the shores of Spain gazing westward until his vision is bounded by the meeting of sea and sky. What mighty thoughts stir his heart, as evening after evening he sees the sun sink into the ocean's breast, leaving a long quivering path of gold, as if to allure him onward. Far beyond that unknown ocean lies the new world; continents unmbabited except by the Red men, unvisited except by the Vikings of the North. But soon there is a change. God's time had come; and Columbus, whose character had been formed, and his course indicated by seemingly the most trival circumstances, sets sail to follow these cloudy fleets he had so often seen gathering at the portals of evening.

But why was it that this discovery did not take take place before? Here we find more than a mere coincidence. The Protestant Reformation had roused men to higher sense of religious and political freedom. It had roused, also, a spirit of bitter persecution, and there in that Western world, away from the dust-stained cities of the East, there amid its fresh, green forests and by the banks of its noble streams, the oppressed found that freedom denied them in the land of their nativity.

"Aye, call it holy ground
The soil where first they trod.
They have left unstained what there they found,
Freedom to worship God."

What a change since that band of exiles moored their bark on the wild New England Shore! See how rapidly the tide of civilization has rolled westward, until that grand old hymn of praise, that rang through the forest aisles, is now echoed from unnumbered happy homes.

If we, as a people, are only true to our country and our God and truth, no imagination, however vivid, can picture the future. But remember wherein true greatness consists. It is not extent of territory; Rome had a world-wide sway, but fell. It is not wealth; Babylon has passed away. It is not intellectual culture, nor athletic taste; for Greece had these and is not. It is "righteousness that exalteth a nation."

But why need we multiply instances of the Divine control, reasons for thankfulness for the past and hope for the future? We see them all around us. In the rapid spread of the English language, and with it civil and religious liberty. In the thousands who yearly come to our shores, where they can be reached by the gospel. In the developments of physical science, confirming and illustrating the teachings of scripture, in all these we find abundant cause for thankfulness.

And if the Lord thus administers the affairs of the universe, where is there room for despondency as to the future? The progress of truth and right is ever onward and upward. Though nation is rising against nation, yet the Lord hath prepared His throne in the heavens; His kingdom ruleth over all.

Have, then, faith in God; then shall we be able to join with Tennyson:

"Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring happy bells across the snow,
The year is going—let it go;
Ring out the false, ring in the true"

"Ring out old shapes of foul disease:
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold;
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace."

"Ring in the valiant man and free,
The large heart, the kindlier hand;
Ring out the darkness of the land,
Ring in the Christ that is to be."

LOCAL NOTICES.

NEW MUSIC STORE.—Messrs. Booth & Sargent have rented the store No. 5, Parshall Opera House block, and will open a first-class Music Store on or about the first of December. They will keep the far famed Steinway, the Bradbury, the Knabe and other well known pianos, also cabinet organs, a general stock of musical instruments, sheet music, music books, and in fact everything pertaining to a first-class music store. Mr. J. B. Booth brings to the business a ripe experience, having been several years connected with J. C. Hull of the celebrated Meadville music store. The citizens of Titusville and vicinity who contemplate purchasing pianos or other musical instruments, are respectfully requested to withhold their orders until they can inspect the stock that will be offered in a short time by Official Warning.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 25.

The papers of this city have been officially warned against supporting France or unfavorably criticizing Germany.

Russia Will be Firm.

LONDON, Nov 25.

The Times intimates that Russia will be firm without closing the door to negotiations, an attitude England will imitate. The Times also says there are 200,000 Germans in the valley of the Loire.

Prussian dragoons on Wednesday entered St. Quentine for the purpose of stopping a railroad train, but their attempt was defeated by the French.

Germans Concentrating.

Movements looking to a concentration of German armies continue. In the north of France large bodies of Russians are moving south to take position around Paris and near Orleans. Since the last dispatches were forwarded, the Germans who have been operating around Rocroy, Renney, Noy and Messiers have suddenly departed, going in the same direction. Several Prussian divisions passed Soissons going toward Amiens early in the week, and others were to follow. It is reported Manteuffel, leaving Amiens on the right, will march on Rouen. The headquarters are still at Compeigne. The Prussian entrenchment at Stone are nearly completed.

Surrender of Thionville.

The formal surrender of Thionville occurred this morning. The town had been burning since Tuesday last.

The Duke of Mecklenburg is urging an immediate advance of the French army of the Loire. Skirmishes have already occured between the outposts of the armies at Newville and Mouziers.

In the department of Loire, the Gards Mobiles from Amiens have been repulsed at Sequest by the Prussians. The flight of the French was very disorderly.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

The feeling in financial circles at this hour may fairly be called panicky. Consols and other securities at the close of business, were generally lower, and there is no corresponding advance. Much uneasiness prevails in business communities. There is no doubt that the Russian Government is firm in her demands relative to the provisions of the Paris treaty.

Austrian Policy Endorsed.

VIENNA, Nov. 25.

The journals of this city, official and otherwise, are unanimous in their expressions of joy at the peaceful tenor of the Red Book, which has just made its appearance. All applaud the firmness of the Austrian Government on its European policy.

A Battle in Progress.

TOURS, Nov. 25.

Heavy cannonading has been heard at Orleans all day to-day and yesterday in the direction of Arthenay, where an important engagement has doubtless occurred. A report says the engagement was favorable to the French. Nothing official has been received.

The Bombardment of Thionville.

LONDON, Nov 25

A special to the World says that a Brussels dispatch states that a balloon arrived yesterday at Sonraine, Belgium, bringing Wilfred Frionville, late scientific chronicler for La Liberte, Paris, with four passengers from that city, two of whom left immediately for Silge and Tours, with official dispatches from Paris.

The cellars of Thionville were inundated yesterday. The commandant of that place asked permission to remove the women and children, for whom there is no place of refuge in the town. The Prussian commander refused to grant the request. The bombardment of Thionville was going on last evening.

Crisis in the English Cabinet.

The Cabinet crisis culminated to-day. This morning Earl Granville left London and went to Windsor Castle, where the Queen had arrived previously. The object of his visit was to inform Her Majesty of the impossibility of carrying on the Government with the Cabinet irreconcilably divided as to the policy to be pursued toward Russia. The tender of his resignation on this issue will upset the Ministry, and a dissolution of the Cabinet can scarcely be prevented. The Cabinet assembled at half past 2 o'clock; Granville and Gladstone were absent. At 3 o'clock Gladstone, Prime Minister, arrived with a note from Prince Gortschakoff, and then ensued a hot and even angry discussion. No decision was arrived at. The Cabinet at 7 o'clock adjourned to meet again to-morrow.

News from Paris by Balloon.

By balloon a complete file of Paris papers to the 28th has been received. Le Temps gives details concerning the quantity of provisions in the city. In two days more the beef and mutton will be exhausted. There is very little salt meat. Dried fish sufficient for two days. There is five months' supply of chocolate. Rice less abundant. Oil is becoming scarce. Sugar, coffee and wine will last long time enough. The material for bread on hand will carry the supply into January. Horse-flesh will last two months longer. The situation on the whole is pronounced good. The Echo du Nord this evening believes that a pitched battle is going on to-day near Amiens. The Etoile Belge has a letter dated Neuville 24th, reporting an engagement Wednesday near Meizeres, in which the Germans were defeated and suffered heavy loss.

An American steamship for Havre was convoyed by French frigates. Her cargo consists of 18,000,000 cartridges, 10,000 breech-loading muskets, a large number of carbines and pistols, and 55 cannon. These munitions are intended for the equipment of the Army of the Loire, whose movements, it is said, have been delayed by their non-arrival.

A German ship, said to be the Lord Brougham, has been captured at Deal by a French frigate.

The German steamer Deutschland is still at anchor at Great Grimsly Harbor.

Battle in Progress.

LILLE, Nov. 25.

There has been fighting all day at Villieres Bretoneaux. The details of the battle have not yet come to hand. Neither the number of troops engaged nor the result is known here.

BERLIN, Nov 25.

The Federal Parliament is asked to vote a supply of one hundred million thalers for the prosecution of the war to the end.

The Berlin Anzieger of to-day believes the end of war is near at hand.

It is confidently believed here that the Eastern controversy will end without a rupture of peaceful relations. Russia and Prussia are equally averse to a Congress, which no Power, however, has yet proposed

VIENNA, Nov. 25

In the Hungarian Diet, Baron Von Buest in reply to an inquiry in regard to the Eastern question, said he deemed it inexpedient to make any disclosures at present.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune on Thursday telegraphs that the Austrian delegation opened its session at noon, and the Hungarian in the afternoon. Two precedents were pointed out urging the necessity for exercising an honorable and energetic influence on the foreign policy of the country, and the advisability of making extraordinary exertions to uphold the power of monarchy and secure lasting peace. The King will receive delegations on Saturday. No opposition is expected if a budget is made necessary by the demands of a prospective war. A select commission will probably be appointed to inquire into the state of the national defence.

Gortschakoff's reply reached London early in the morning. Granville conferred with the Queen. It was supposed the object of his visit was to present the dispatch. Such steps taken so swiftly was deemed very grave, but in fact the Chief of the Cabinet had not at the time received the dispatch, as Baron Bronow did not deliver it until evening, shortly before the Cabinet conference. Immediately a meeting was held between Granville and Gladstone, the dispatch was laid before the council, all the members of the Cabinet being present except Bright and Fortesque. Extreme caution is shown not to give any kind of information, but there is some authority for saying that the Cabinet has arrived at no decision. The reception of this dispatch has produced much anxiety in the highest quarters. The only thing certain to-night is that the Government wishes delay, and desires nothing less than that the exciting war feeling be increased. No belief is created that the difficulty is concluded. The Cabinet session was long.

The reported resignation of Bright is doubtful, but if true, is due to Russia. His health has decidedly improved of late. He has resumed his business partially.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Nov 25.

A report was put in circulation a few days ago that the estimates for the next fiscal year had been completed and sent to the chairman of the Committee on Appropriation. The fact is quite the reverse. The chief clerk of the Treasury Department was busily working on them yesterday, regardless of it being a holiday, and it is not expected they will be completed and printed so as to be laid on the desks of members of Congress till a late hour of the first day's session.

Hereafter no notes will be forwarded from the Treasurer's office in return for certificates of deposit issued by the Assistant Treasurer and designated depositories of the United States, as provided in circulars No. 8, 1869, and No. 1, 1870, and new notes will not be forwarded in return for bankers' drafts, as provided in circular No. 1, 1870. Fractional currency will be forwarded by express from the Treasurer's office, under a Government contract with the Adams Express Company, to any point within the territory covered by that contract, at the expense of the Department, on certain forms

The President has ordered a survey of the Creek and Seminole sections of the Indian Territory west of the 96th degree, for the purpose of having the land divided into small tracts, on which to locate separate families, and thus enable them to establish homes, so that the peaceful policy of the Government toward the Indians can be carried into effect.

General Halleck has been ordered to make such disposition of the troops now in Georgia, as may be necessary to preserve peace at the approaching elections The Governor of Georgia, now here, has no knowledge of any additional troops having been ordered to that State, and is of the opinion that the State authorities did not need them.

The Report of the Commissioner of Agriculture, making a bound volume of 700 pages, with numerous illustrations, has just been issued from the Government printing office. Congress in July last ordered 220,000 extra copies of the Report printed for distribution by the House, Senate, and Commissioner of Agriculture.

Criminal Proceedings.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 25.

J. S. Hamilton, for having counterfeit money in his possession, was sentenced to jail for nine months, to-day.

W. J. Bevis, indicted last February for passing counterfeit money, and who has since been missing, was discovered in court by his bondsmen to-day. It was given out that he was drowned.

Murderous Freaks of a Lunatic.

A man named Anthony Hoop, manifestly suffering from partial insanity, entered St. Xavier Catholic College to-day, armed with a hatchet and a long knife, saying the Jesuits were getting too much power in this country, and he wanted to die for Jesus, and created great consternation by attacking the priests. Father O'Neill was cut on the left arm, inflicting a painful though not dangerous wound, and a number of other priests received slight injuries before the man was arrested.

The ship Persia, of Bath, New Orleans to Liverpool, cargo cotton, went ashore at Frying Pan shoals Thursday morning. It is hoped she may be got off. The U. S. revenue cutter and two tugs have gone to her assistance. Her cargo is valued at $250,000.

Army of the Cumberland Reunion.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25.

The meeting was called to order by Gen. Rosecrans.

The report of the Treasurer, referred yesterday to the Auditing Committee, was accepted.

The report of the Committee on Nominations of Officers was then read. It recommended that the office of President be left vacant one year, and that Gen. Rosecrans be made First Vice President for the ensuing year, with this alternative: that if it be considered necessary to elect a President, he be the choice of the Society. A long discussion then ensued on the point that there was no authority in the Constitution for creating a ranking Vice President. Gen. Palmer thought the Chair should always be vacant, and that the duties of the President be discharged by the First Vice President. Gen. Rosecrans withdrew from the chair temporarily in favor of Gen. Kimball, stating that he could not with propriety occupy it, considering the nature of the debate. Gen. Garfield was in favor of filling the vacancy. Gen. Ward's motion that the Society proceed to the election of a President was renewed and carried.

The report of the Nominating Committee was adopted, making Gen. Rosecrans President of the Society. [Great applause.] The General returned thanks for the honor. He was glad that the Society had decided to respect the letter of their constitution. He could see no honor to a deceased President of this Society in keeping his chair vacant, if by so doing their written constitution was violated. He earnestly recommended, however, that Gen. Thomas' chair be perpetually kept vacant and shrouded in mourning, as a feature in future re-unions. Carried.

The officers for the ensuing year are: President, Major Gen. W. S. Rosecrans; Vice Presidents—Ohio, Gen. J. D Cox; Ind., Gen. Nathan Kimball; Kentucky, Gen. T. E. Wood; Tennessee, Capt. J. P Drouilard; Michigan, Gen. W. L. Stoughton; New York, Gen. Joe Hooker; Iowa, Gen. W. H. Lowe; New Jersey, Gen. G. W. Windell; Kansas, Gen. John W. Marlin; District of Columbia, Gen. W. U. Whipple; Illinois, Gen. Phil Sheridan; Minnesota, Gen. Van Cleave; Pennsylvania, Col. V. H. Ramsey; Wisconsin, Gen. J. S. Starkweather; Missouri, Col. Chas. Van Sanborn.

Corresponding Secretary, Col. H. M. Cist. Recording Secretary, Col. Jno. W. Steel. Treasurer, Gen. J. S. Fullerton.

St Louis and Detroit were named as the places to hold the next meeting. It was decided to hold it at the latter city on the 16th and 17th of November next.

General Cluft, of the committee appointed on Thursday to report a plan to pay some fitting tribute to the memory of General Thomas, reported the following: On the 29th of March, 1870, Major General George H. Thomas, the great soldier, who has presided over this society since its organization, fell at his post with all his harness on. His spirit returned to the God who gave it, and the memory of his greatness and goodness is all that is now left to us. His death was a national calamity and an irreparable loss to his comrades. Therefore be it

Resolved, That it is vain by words to attempt to express our loss or to describe the grief which prevails in this Society in view of this sad event.

Resolved, That the banners of this Society be draped in mourning, and that an appropriate memorial page be inscribed upon its records

Resolved, That some fitting monument should be erected by his countrymen to mark the spot where rests the remains of our beloved commander, and that this Society shall take the initiatory steps for its erection; and to that end that a committee be now appointed to arrange some method to procure the necessary funds, and to provide a design, specifications and estimates therefor, and to report at the next meeting.

Resolved, That the President shall appoint some comrade to prepare a biography of General Thomas, and collate and arrange the proceedings of the various States and Associations in honor of his memory, with a view to future publication by this Society.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted, and it was determined that the committee should consist of one from each State

Adjourned until two o'clock.

General Palmer delivered the regular annual oration at three o'clock. The audience was large and he was frequently applauded. In the evening a grand banquet was given at Central rink.

National Immigration Convention.

The committee appointed by the National Immigration Convention at Indianapolis, to memorialize Congress, met at the Sherman House, in this city to-day. The Committee comprises the following gentlemen: Gov. J. M McCook, of Colorado, Acting Chairman; Henry Greenebaum, Illinois, Secretary; M. P. Muckle, Pennsylvania; Charles Reemelin, Ohio; C. D. Sandon, Mississippi; Col. H. Matson, Minnesota; W. E Smith, Wisconsin. The resolutions presented to the Convention were taken up. The following was then drafted in regard to the first two resolutions: Your memorialists would represent to your honorable bodies that the Convention which we represent embodied delegates from twenty-two States and one Territory of the Union, and that it was composed in a great measure of men who had given much of their time and attention, both in this country and in Europe, to the subject of transporting immigrants from Europe; and in placing before you the views of the Convention, we would state that immigrants are frequently placed in badly ventilated ships, supplied with insufficient food, deprived of means to secure personal cleanliness, unprovided with proper medical attendance, and even in vessels where proper sanitary regulations are enforced the laws of the United States are violated by over crowding the steerage. Your memorialists think as great evils exist in the inland transit of immigrants as in their transportation to this country. Your memorialists call attention to the fact that by far the greater number of immigrants landing at our seaports pass over immediately to Western and Southern States and territories, and that during such transit they are subject to many abuses, such as being crowded into cars insufficiently ventilated, and not being afforded sufficient facilities for obtaining cheap and wholesome food and water; being unnecessarily delayed; being sent by circuitous routes in order to accommodate certain railroad companies; being enticed by runners into boarding houses against their wishes and interests; not being able to have their baggage checked through, and thereby frequently losing it; being insulted by dock hands and thieves on the river and lake steamers. The annual report of the Commissioner of Immigration of the State of New York for the year ending December 31st, 1869, corroborates fully the conviction forced upon the minds of your memorialists that it has become an imperative duty with the United States Government to carry out the objects above recited, and they respectfully urge the proposed convention between the Government of the United States and foreign governments, for the letter protection of steerage passengers on the high seas, at the earliest practicable time. They also call attention to the injuries frequently sustained on the part of immigrants by the action of Custom House Inspectors, referred to in said report of the Commissioners of Immigration of the State of New York. The committee then adjourned till evening when they will probably complete their report.

Advance in Railroad Freights.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.

The New York Central, Hudson River, Erie, Pennsylvania, and all connecting railroads, have agreed to a large advance on western bound freights, to take effect Monday, Nov. 28th. The following are the rates decided upon: Columbus, 1st class, 127; 2d, 103; 3d, 81; 4th, 51. Cincinnati, 1st class, 146; 2d, 118; 3d, 93; 4th, 59. Louisville, 1st class, 175; 2d, 143; 3d, 114; 4th, 74. Chicago, 1st class, 160; 2d, 130; 3d, 100; 4th, 65. St. Louis, 1st class, 200; 2d, 116; 3d, 129; 4th, 84; 5th, or special class, abolished.

New York News.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.

The Tribune's Washington correspondent telegraphs that when Congress meets Chief Justice Chase will ask to be relieved of the duties which the bankruptcy act of 1867 requires him to perform as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. The health of the Chief Justice continues steadily to improve. He will remain at Narragansett, Rhode Island, until after Christmas, when he will seek a milder climate. In a recent letter he says: The doctor gives me reason to believe that I shall recover fully from my present illness. I am certainly much better.

Secretary Robeson is authority for the denial of the published report that he is a candidate for the United States Senate from New Jersey, as Mr. Cattle's successor. Mr. Robeson says he is not only not a candidate for United States Senator, but he has never had any such intention; and further, that he is emphatically in favor of Cattle's re-election. There is equally good authority for saying that Frelinghuysen will not be a candidate at the approaching election. From what is known of the condition of affairs in New Jersey, there appears to be no doubt that Senator Cattle will be re-elected

A special dispatch says the next Legislature of Nevada will consist, according to latest advices, of 12 Republicans and 11 Democrats in the Senate, with 20 Republicans and 26 Democrats in the Assembly. Official returns may possibly give the Democrats two or three less in the Assembly. In 1869 the Republicans had 15 and the Democrats 14 in the Senate. The Assembly stood 34 to 3 in favor of the Republicans.

Evacuation day was celebrated by a parade by the veterans of 1812, Fifth, Sixth, and Seventh Regiments, the latter passing in review at City Hall. A private letter says that Gen James B McKean, Chief Justice of Utah, was at Omaha on the 20th, en route for the East. The recent rulings of the Chief Justice of Utah seems to be bringing the Mormon question to a crisis, and more importance attaches to them when it is known that his decisions are sustained by the higher tribunals and authorities in Washington.

Beecher, in his discourse at Plymouth Church yesterday, sternly rebuked the invitation to war with England. He said: O, cursed of God and of all men may be that man who counsels the red hand of war, except when need to fight for national existence. The only war we want is the war of righteousness. Let Kings war, let aristocrats war, but the nobles of this great republic should know the fellowship of men, and instead of the red hand of war let them put around their neighbors the arm of fellowship and dwell with them in harmony, in unity, in sympathy and in love."

Fire in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25

About twelve o'clock the rear portion of Mitchell's buildings, Broad street between Olive and Pine, next to the Custom House, on the south, occupied as a warehouse by John Johnston, commission merchant, caught fire and is now pretty well gutted, but the second, third and fourth stories, occupied as lodging rooms and offices. The fifth story occupied by the St. Louis Printing Company is totally destroyed. Value of stock and machinery about $6,000; insured $3,000. Thompson's loss is unknown. The fire is now extending along the roof to the front of the building, which is occupied by the Second National Bank, National Loan Bank and insurance offices, but it is not probable they will be burned, as the firemen have control of the flames.

The loss on Mitchell's building, burned this noon, is about twenty thousand dollars. The losses of the Central Insurance Company, John S. Thompson, and other occupants of the building, will run the total loss to about $40,000. The Mansard roof of the front portion of the building is totally destroyed, but no other damage was done except by water. The Times office adjoining was slightly damaged.

Woman's Peace Convention.

BOSTON, Nov. 26.

The World's Peace Convention of Women assembled at Tremont Temple this evening with a good attendance.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe presided and addressed the convention, giving her well-known views upon the pacification of the world by the direct intervention of women.

Mrs. S. D. Cheney followed, and said there was no reason why the endeavors of woman to allay the suffering on battlefields should not be carried further and prevent the further causes of that suffering Mothers who had furnished victims for war had a right to be heard.

At the close of Mrs. Cheney's address, Senator Wilson entered the Temple and was urged to take a seat on the platform. He declined and remarked that if anything could be done by man or woman to make a public sentiment that would bring to a close the wicked war in Europe, he would be glad. Mr. Wilson closed by moving the appointment of a committee to act with similar committees in other cities to further the interests of the New York general convention to be held on the 23d of December. Carried.

Convention adjourned.

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD,
TITUSVILLE, November 25, 1870—9 P. M.

There was little, if any, change in the petroleum market yesterday, and though the feeling was firm, buyers were not inclined to make concessions, and the list of reported transactions was limited. Upon the Lower Creek $3.25 was the ruling bid with sellers asking from $3 25 to $3.30. Upon the Upper Creek $3.00 was the selling price, and buyers were offering from $2.95 to $3 00

The feeling prevails, that no important decline will be experienced during the present month, and after that a variety of opinion exists regarding the price of the product—both extremes manifesting firmness in their views.

Infringement Notice.—The subscriber has learned that a certain firm in Titusville, known as "Bryan, Dillingham & Co.," have commenced the manufacture of SUCKER RODS with SOCKET JOINTS. This is a DIRECT INFRINGEMENT ON HIS RIGHTS, as his claim is "connecting two sections of rod by means of wedges, wedging sockets, and double coupling bolt." He does not specify any particular shaped wedge, nor of what material it shall be made. All rods made as above described outside of his manufactory, are direct infringements.

This, therefore is to caution Oil Operators, and all others, against buying or using any rods so made, except those of his manufacture, as by so doing they will lay themselves liable, and will be dealt with according to law. WM. J. INNIS.

We shall publish the time table in full on Monday.

A CONSIDERABLE amount of interesting matter prepared for this issue is necessarily deferred.

THANKSGIVING SERMONS.—On our first page to-day will be found the Thanksgiving discourses of Rev. Messrs. Purdon and Murdoch.

WANTED.—A furnished bedroom, in a private house, without board, for a single gentleman. Address, stating terms, A. B., HERALD office.

THE Venango County District Convention I. O. of G. T., will be held in Good Templars' Hall, Oil City, Tuesday, Nov. 22. An interesting time is expected.

ATTENTION is called to the advertisement of Wm. H. Sink, who offers for sale the best span of mules in the oil regions; also, a span of ponies, wagons, harness, etc.

THE Saguwatha Lodge, I. O. of G. T., have leased Old Fellows Hall, which has ample accommodation for their increasing membership. The Lodge will meet there on Monday evening next APROPOS to Thanksgiving, Dr. Alphonzo was called to attend a gentleman on Thursday evening, who had become the victim of four plump partridges, three shrieking wild geese, two ducks and a good fat hen.

THE ordinance prohibiting the exercise of velocipedes in the centre of the streets, should be suspended during the prevalence of high mud, or at least so modified as to allow ferriage at certain crossings at the risk of the owner.

THE REV. JOHN PEATE, of Franklin, one of the ablest and most popular ministers in this country will preach to-morrow, the 27th inst, in the Methodist church at Pleasantville, at 11 o'clock, a. m. All are cordially invited to attend

POLICE MATTERS.—One of the inseparable accompaniments of a National holiday is an excess of rowdyism and intoxication. Thanksgiving Day, however, was exceptionably orderly and quiet. There were but three arrests for drunkenness, and only one for assault. Justice Stronse docketed them.

WE will pay fifty dollars reward for any information that will lead to the detection and conviction of the ubiquitous old farmer, and the mythical individual who has been charged with having accidentally jumped over the four foot barricade into the mill race on Franklin street.

THE Crawford Journal announces that "the Producers' Association take great pains to be correct, and their figures may be regarded as correct." Hence the Producers' report is correct and the HERALD'S is wrong. This assurance will afford great relief to sundry individuals not possessing the same facilities for securing "correct" information as country journalists

IMPORTANT NEW STRIKE.—A well on the Hill tract, Pine Creek, owned by T. C. Joy, M. Brownson, F. W. Andrews, of Titusville, and Benson, Hopkins and McKelvy, of Enterprise, which had been pumping about six barrels the past ten days, was torpedoed on Wednesday by Mr. Thomas, since which time, we are reliably informed, it produced at the rate of 150 barrels per day. This well is about three miles from Enterprise, on the line of the proposed Titusville and Tidioute Railroad, and opens up a new and valuable territory.

VERDICT IN SUIT FOR DAMAGES.—The case of Wm Stitt vs. A. & F. Huidekoper, of Meadville, which has been on trial before the U. S. Circuit Court at Pittsburg since the 15th, was concluded on Wednesday morning, having been submitted to the jury on the previous evening. Upon the opening of the Court the jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendant for the sum of nine thousand dollars. The last time the case was tried, the jury awarded the plaintiff eighteen thousand dollars. A motion for a new trial, and reason was filed by plaintiff's counsel.

PERSONAL.—Senator Sumner lectured at Franklin last evening. Report on Monday.

—Our fellow townsman, Dr. S. S. Bates, is visiting the silver mines of Colorado and Wyoming. He arrived at Denver on the 18th inst.

—Our long-time bachelor friend, Mr. W. P. Johnson, shuffled off the coil of single blessedness on Thursday. May it prove to him a cause of perpetual "thanksgiving." Next!

—J. Henri Burch, (colored) late fashionable barber in Titusville, and now editing a newspaper at Baton Rouge, is, we observe, a candidate for the Legislature of Louisiana. Having resided so long in Titusville, he is probably running on a new county issue.

—Mr. Benj. F. Whitman, editor of the Erie Observer, declines being considered a candidate for the office of Surveyor General. He believes in the maxim that "the post of honor is the private station."

—C. L. Wheeler, Esq., of Pittsburgh, was in town on Thursday, to partake of Thanksgiving turkey with brother John, and listen to a Thanksgiving Sermon from brother Purdon.

—Among the visitors in town on Thursday were Dr. Gray, member elect to Assembly, and T. C. Gliddon, Esq., of the Erie Gazette, who is not yet member elect, but ought to be.

—General Rosecrans passed through Corry Wednesday night on his way to the grand re-union of the Army of the Cumberland, held in Cleveland on Thursday.

Dedication of Odd Fellows Hall.

According to the previously published notice, the above interesting and solemn ceremony took place in the new hall, located in Odd Fellows block, corner of Pine and Franklin streets, on Thanksgiving Day, at 2 o'clock, p. m. It being the desire of the members of the Lodge in this city, that the formal acceptance and dedication should be public, a special dispensation for that purpose was granted by D. D. Grand Master Lenhart, of Meadville, but in order to avoid crowding and confusion, only a limited number of invitations were issued to the friends of those identified with the Order. Invitations were also extended to neighboring Lodges, which were largely represented.

The Odd Fellows of this city have long felt the need of a more convenient and comfortable room, but until the erection of the block above mentioned, no suitable place seemed to offer. Long before the roof was on, negotiations were entered into to secure, if possible, a room adequate to the wants of this rapidly growing and flourishing Lodge. These were soon brought to a successful issue, and a lease was made out, extending five years, at an annual rent of $500.

The Lodge thus obtains a building 27½ wide by 114 feet deep. This space is so divided as to give three fine ante-rooms, a large reading room 20 feet by 25 feet, and an audience chamber 27½ feet wide by 60 feet long. The ceilings are twelve feet high, which with the walls are hand-finished. Ample provisions have been made for thorough ventilation, at the same time securing the utmost privacy to the Lodge while in session. Of course in the fitting up of the rooms, the committee had to be governed in their expenditures by the amount in their cash box, but when we consider that the Lodge is scarcely two years old and started without a dollar and only seven members, and that it has spent nearly one thousand dollars for regalia and paraphernalia, it is astonishing to see how well the treasury has stood the drafts made upon it, and to note the judicious application of the funds thus appropriated.

Suffice it to say, the committee discharged their rather difficult task to the eminent satisfaction of the Lodge and those of the public who were permitted to see their work.

The four principal chairs are surmounted by handsome canopies, with black walnut and gilt cornices fastened to the ceiling. The loopings are gracefully held in position by large cords and tassels, while on the sides, long flowing drapery, reaching to the floor, is neatly festooned to the wall. The pedestals are neatly made and painted in imitation of marble. In the panels of each are the emblems of the respective chairs in gilt. Over the principal chair is an emblematic representation of the "All-seeing Eye," which by gas-light glistens with striking effect.

The body of the Lodge-room is neatly carpeted with striped matting. On the walls hang suitable engravings and emblems of the order.

The room is brilliantly lighted by three handsome chandeliers of six burners each, besides the lights at each of the Secretaries' desks. The furniture is oak and chestnut, trimmed with black walnut. A splendid seven octave piano occupies one corner of the room. Taken as a whole, we cannot but pronounce the efforts of the committee a decided success, for, although the room and its decorations are not, by any means, as elegant and costly as the Lodge-rooms of our larger cities, there is an air of easy and substantial comfort pervading the chamber which cannot fail to make it a favorite resort of all those who are entitled to its privileges. As we have before stated, the Lodge selected the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day at 2 o'clock for the dedicatory ceremonies. At an early hour, the members of the Order, with invited guests, began to assemble, and by the time the Grand Officers were ready to enter, every available seat was filled. At the proper time, D. D. G. Master Lenhart, accompanied by a full staff of Grand Officers, entered the room, when the officers of the Lodge arose and gave them their seats; whereupon the Grand Chaplain invoked the Divine blessing, as follows:

"Direct us, O Lord, in all our doings, with Thy most precious favor, and further us with Thy continual help; that in all our works begun, continued, and ended in Thee, we may glorify Thy holy name, and finally by Thy mercy obtain everlasting life. Amen"

The President of the Hall Committee, Past Grand Hammond, then addressed the Grand Master as follows: Most worthy Grand Master, we meet here to-day to announce that the work in which we have been engaged is finished, and our temple is at last ready to shelter us within its walls. It is not the business of the committee to allude to their own labors, nor the manner in which those labors have been performed; nor would good taste permit them to descant on the fitness of our edifice for the sacred purpose to which it is designed. It is capable of speaking for itself through its proportions and its style. If these fail to impress you, any words of mine would prove worse than useless. I have only to repeat that our work is finished, and in behalf of Chorazin Lodge No 507, of the Order in this place, I make request that this hall be set apart and dedicated to the business and purposes of Odd Fellowship.

The Grand Master responded as follows:

Mr. President of Odd Fellows Hall Committee: In the name of and in behalf of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of the State of Pennsylvania, accept for dedication for the uses of Odd Fellowship, this hall, which has been constructed under your supervision. To you and your associates, the present must be especially gratifying. To-day you hail the completion of that for which you have so zealously and faithfully labored, and to-day you behold the recognition, by your brethren from the North, the South, the East and the West, of this the result of your efforts, as a temple, devoted to the service of those whose vocation it is to visit the sick, relieve the distressed, bury the dead, and educate the orphans—duties which neither interfere with, nor supercede the discharge of any other, social, moral or religious.

Brothers, I congratulate you upon the completion of this beautiful hall, which we are about to dedicate to those cardinal virtues which should adorn and elevate humanity and, the names of which we have selected as the motto and watchwords of our beloved Order. Beneath this roof you are to encourage one another in the duties of benevolence and charity; before this altar the good works of Friendship, Love and Truth are ever to be presented as the only acceptable sacrifices.

* * * *

It is, therefore, not so much this temple made with hands that should occupy our attention at present, as the great principles that are here to be disseminated. I hope and trust, brethren, that our united efforts, with those of our brethren throughout the globe, may lead to the raising and adorning of a still nobler temple, which shall be consecrated by the approval of the Supreme Grand Master of the Universe, without the invocation of whose blessing no work should be undertaken.

Then followed a supplication for the Divine blessing, after which the reading of the 121st Psalm by the Lodge.

The Grand Master then solemnly dedicated the Hall to the principles of Friendship, Love and Truth, Faith, Hope and Charity, and caused proclamation to be made by the Grand Heralds of the North, South, East and West, after which the choir sang the beautiful Dedicatory Ode. Then followed an address by the Grand Chaplain to the Throne of Grace, at the close of which the Grand Master closed as follows:

Brethren of Chorazin Lodge, we now again deliver into your hands this beautiful temple you have elevated to our Order. Joy be within its walls and Peace be a constant guest; may these walls never echo with the sound of an angry or unkind word. May all the influences that flow hence be good and for good, now, and forever. Amen.

The following eloquent and impressive address was then delivered by Past Grand W. S. Morriss, of this city:

Brethren of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Ladies and Gentlemen:

We have assembled to-day in order to dedicate this hall to the peculiar purposes of Odd Fellowship. The services you have just witnessed have revealed in part the objects of our organization. This place is henceforth to be sacred to the rites of the noble brotherhood who maintain the truth, sacred to friendship and love, faith, hope and charity. In imagination we may picture the Angel of Mercy hovering over us and shielding us with his wings. And if he writes, what does he record? Not discoveries in science; not the adventures of the explorer; not the eloquence of the orator; not the skill of the artizan; not the chicanery of the politician; not the astuteness of the statesman; not the triumphs of genius; not the strife of the battlefield, but the gentle ministrations of true kindness. Then let the record of what shall be done here be made by anticipation, and may not the future belie the happy promises of the present. You, my brethren will meet from week to week and from year to year, to put in practice the principles of one of the best institutions in existence. While the monarchs of the old world are awakening the people from their dreams of peace, you are protected in your rights, and have the blessed privilege of devoting your energies to the good of your fellow-men. I know how easy it is to magnify the importance of ordinary things, and how prone we are to exaggerate the influence of the organizations to which we may belong. But if dropping water will wear away the stone, your constant efforts to relieve distress will touch the rugged heart at last. The mystic ties that bind our members together are among the strongest ever formed by men. It may be truly said that there are few friendships more real, tender, and lasting, than those that are made within the walls of our Lodges. Now and then the spirit of contention may arise and sharp utterances may be heard, and yet it is marvellous how little there is of really angry feeling in all that is said and done. No doubt the beautiful and impressive teachings of our ritual have much to do with this. It would be strange indeed if a member should attend his Lodge without having his sympathies enlisted in the great work in which the order is engaged. The future of Odd Fellowship will be just what you and your fellows will make it. As a part of the great order now represented here, you, my brethren, will have your share in assisting to mould its character. It may be that we have become so much attached to our Society that we overlook its infirmities while we unduly magnify its virtues. All human institutions are more or less imperfect; and it would be strange indeed if anyone should succeed in forming an organization without weakness or blemish. If this should come to pass, we would have the astonishing anomaly of a fallible creation originating the infallible. We therefore do not claim that the order of Odd Fellows cannot be improved. But take it, such as it is, there are very few, if any, secular bodies, that can justly claim to be superior to it.

Our Order dates its recognized existence in this country, from the 26th of April, 1819, when the first Lodge was established in the city of Baltimore, by Thomas Wildey and his associates, John Welch, John Duncan, John Cheatham, and Richard Rushworth. This was named Washington Lodge, No. 1. These were all men in the humble walks of life. Brother Wildey afterwards became Grand Sire, that is, the presiding officer of the Grand Lodge of the United States, and he died not very long ago, after having lived to witness what men seldom see—the more than full fruition of cherished hopes. So far as is known, we sprang from the organization called in England, the "Manchester Unity," a body that was established in the city of that name, somewhere about the year 1809." What its previous history may have been, is a subject for inquiry and speculation, rather than of ascertained fact. It is not unusual for the plainest of men to take intense delight in tracing their ancestry to remote ages, under the conviction that in proportion as they ascend the stream of Time, their importance will be enhanced in the estimation of their friends. A feeling of pride akin to this has induced some of our fraternity to put forth extravagant pretensions to antiquity. It has been said that the Order of Odd Fellows was established in the time of Nero; that the members were first called "fellow-citizens;" that the name now in use originated a few years afterwards, and that it was so applied on account of the singular character of its meetings, and because the members recognized each other by "mystic signs and language." All this and even more has been asserted respecting the history of the Order of Odd Fellows, and with how much truthfulness I will leave you to conjecture. At some future time a work may be prepared that will throw more light upon this subject, and until then we should rest contented with the actual knowledge we have, and not trouble ourselves about the unknown.

The Order as established by Brother Wildey, met with opposition, whether deserved or not, but it finally prevailed, and after undergoing some modification took deep root. It now extends all over the United States, and there are also Lodges in foreign places. We have now the most cheering prospects, for we are increasing more rapidly than ever before. Within the next twenty-five years we shall probably have about a million of members in this country alone. These prospects ought to gladden your hearts, and give you fresh courage for the work you have undertaken to do. Our Order is a living illustration of the admonition, "despise not the day of small things."

Chorazin Lodge was re-instituted on the 26th day of November, 1868. To-day you have met for the purpose of consecrating this place to the noble work of Odd Fellowship, and by anticipation of a day or two, to celebrate the second anniversary of the Lodge's new birth. It is proper to rejoice upon such an occasion as this. You have succeeded in building up a Lodge that is a credit to the Order, and one which I am persuaded will be of great use in this city. You started with only seven members, but now have between eighty and ninety, and a beautiful place of meeting, with every inducement to be faithful in the work.

The Order of Odd Fellows is a secret organization, not more so, however, than kindred societies. This is the great stumbling block, that at one time interfered with our progress. But within the last twenty years a large number of excellent and intelligent men, whose standing has given them great influence in the community, have sought membership among us, and have continued with us, working like the rest for the advancement of our cause. Their judicious support and their exemplary living, have dispelled some of the prejudices that have been arrayed against us. We are separated from the field of politics, for as Odd Fellows, we eschew the rancors of party discussion. Whatever may be our associations in this respect as citizens, we carry nothing of the sort into the Lodge room. Nor do we, in our distinctive character, have anything to do with sectarian polemics. Our views concerning the brotherhood of the human race, forbid the introduction of such subjects. We differ somewhat from other orders. Our members, after a certain time, are entitled to receive from the funds of the Lodge a fixed sum weekly during illness, in the nature of health insurance. This is not charity by any means; it is a constitutional right, and one of great practical value. In case of death, money is appropriated to those entitled to receive it for the purpose of interment. In addition to this, large sums of money are expended for the education of the orphans of the Order, and for the relief of distressed brethren and their families.

The Secretary of the Grand Lodge of the United States, James L. Ridgely, stated in his address delivered at the semi-centennial anniversary held in Philadelphia on the 26th of April, 1869, that the Order had "dispensed for the relief of the sick, the burial of the dead, and the education of the orphan, nearly twelve millions, while its aggregate revenue in forty years had exceeded nearly thirty-one millions of dollars." Well might he say, "Who shall attempt to estimate the influence and value of such ministrations?" We may readily infer from this that our Order is especially adapted to men of ordinary means; nevertheless persons of all honorable vocations are found in the Lodges, and all who are fit to enter are welcome to remain. No one should seek admission from purely mercenary motives, and if he should, he would find that he was not in congenial company.

The question is often asked, "what do Odd Fellows do at their meetings?" It will be sufficient to answer that we do many things in private in order to advance the principles of our fraternity. Nothing that is evil. We are associated together for mutual sympathy, counsel and relief. We seek to direct ourselves of prejudice, whether it arises from sect, party or nation. Ingratitude toward the Creator is condemned by every generous mind; every patriot abhors treason, every philanthropist deplores the selfish alienation of man. But no one can be a true Odd Fellow unless he is thankful to the Supreme Being, true to his country, and faithful to his fellow creatures. We recognize and teach the sovereignty of God, and the brotherhood of the race. Knowing from experience that united action is far more effective than individual effort, we are banded together in our Lodges to carry out in actual practice the beautiful theories we hold. A tree is known by its fruits and our order by its works. On the 31st day of March, 1870, we had in this State alone 75,365 members; since then many have been admitted, so that we have now about 80,000 persons within the Pennsylvania Lodges. It cannot be said that all these are faithful to their duties, nor will it be claimed that all of them are workers in the hive, but a large proportion do zealously labor in the cause. During the year ending on the day above mentioned, the total receipts of the Lodges in this State were $630,790.40 and we paid out for benefits, the relief of brothers, widowed families, the education of orphans and burial of the dead, $250,776 81; rather over a quarter of a million of dollars. Well done for the Odd Fellows of the good old State of Pennsylvania. And the order in other parts of the country has been engaged in like beneficent ministrations. Statistics could be multiplied, but inasmuch as details of this sort tend to confuse if there is no opportunity for fixing them in the mind, a few figures only will be given as samples of the whole. The existence of such an institution is a blessing to the country in more ways than one. If it is of service to a home to the Order, it is an advantage to the community that it exists. Instead of standing in the way of progress, it is an efficient agent in advancing the material and the moral interests of the people. Some liberal minded persons have condemned us, in consequence, we we think, of a misapprehension of our principles, and a lack of knowledge respecting the practical workings of the Order. Others have opposed us from the meanest of motives, that is, because they are conscious that we have surpassed them in doing good, and they would turn upon and defame us, to conceal the brown short comings. Men like these are willing that good should be done, if done by themselves, but they are doubtfully shocked that anyone outside of their party or sect, should undertake to do it. The Order of Odd Fellows does not place itself in antagonism with other instrumentalities for alleviating the distress of men. On the contrary, its members are always glad to know that the various charitable institutions which abound in the land, are doing their share in the work of humanity. The little spites engendered by your success must be generously forgiven, remembering that the words of Byron in Childe Harold are not without a fitting application:

"He who surpasses or subdues mankind,
Must look down on the hate of those below."

When the initiate enters a Lodge he does not leave behind him his humanity when he becomes a mystic brother he does not cease to be a citizen, when he takes upon himself the solemn duties of the Order he does not throw aside the restraints of the law, and when he relieves distress he does not forget that others suffer besides his brethren. If he is faithful, he is more humane, more patriotic, more obedient to law, and more considerate to his kind. In all languages there are words of tenderness—for example those which signify father, mother, husband, wife, child, sister, brother. The last of these is used in various senses, and it sometimes means relationship of a purely business character, such as a brother merchant, a brother workman. The soldier who perishes on the battle-field amid the din of arms dies in the presence of his brother warrior. But among us this word imports neither business nor war. It suggests something far more enobling and tender. To the ordinary ties of brotherhood we add the special duty of faithfulness to each other in prosperity as well as in adversity. For more than fifty years the Order has been engaged in efforts to support the weak, and to minister to the necessities of deserving members and their families. It is true that the means of doing so have not always been so abundant as could have been desired. Many Lodges have been, and still are, unable to fulfill their wishes in these respects. But they have done what they could, and that is all that any one should expect. The fire burns on the altar, though it may not season; the heart swells with sympathy, though the hand may not be able to extend relief. Much that is given in charity is ostentatiously bestowed, and with the hope that the names of the donors may be forever linked with the gift. Trust that none of our lodges act from such motives. When we refer to the aid that is dispensed by them, it is only for the purpose of demonstrating the usefulness of our institution, and not in order to name any particular Lodge, or to speak of any individual member. The distinction thus drawn is a very palpable one. The data which show the appropriation of money are kept and can be turned to when desired, but as a general rule we do not parade such matters before the public, nor is it proper that we should do so. The order is not equally prosperous in all the States. Though some Lodges are poor, and though over twelve millions of dollars have been expended in various forms of relief, as before stated, we are by no means bankrupt. About twelve months ago it was estimated that we had a net capital, over and above all expenses, of more than nine millions of dollars. Some one may ask, Why is all this money retained? It is because our Order is a beneficent one, in addition to its character of a charitable institution. It would be unfortunate if we did not profit by the lessons of experience, and make provision for the future. As a Lodge increases in age, its members grow older, and they, like other men, are subject to changes in fortune. Therefore it is right that we should be in a condition to meet the multiplied demands that may be made upon us. The timely succor that we have been enabled to afford has relieved many a family from the necessity of calling for public charity. It is the wish of every earnest Odd Fellow that his Lodge may always be able to take care of its own members, and to help others also.

When the returns were made out last year, we had in good standing about 269,000 members—an increase of 25,000 over the previous year. If, during the interval that has intervened, we have increased at the same rate, we would now have 294,000. The total number of members initiated from 1839 (eleven years after the establishment of the order), until 1869, was 660,259. Facts like these show that Odd Fellowship is not an ephemeral affair. If any modern voluntary society has a chance for a permanent existence, it is the one to which you belong. The steady growth of the order is a tribute to its intrinsic excellence. It has gathered within its folds many of the best men in the land, from the Vice President of the United States, down to him who toils for his daily bread, for our Order takes pride in recognizing the claims of brotherhood in the humblest individual. Can it be supposed that these would remain in a society radically vicious?—and not only remain, but cling to it with pertinacious zeal. We hardly think so. None can tell what the future has in store for us as individuals; nor can we forecast the condition of the Order with absolute certainty, and yet if we may be allowed to judge by the past, we may be happy, and our chosen places may continue to open their doors to receive us from the bitterness of the world. We believe, and we trust, that the Order of Odd Fellows is fixed upon an immovable foundation. We would not willingly see that foundation disturbed, nor will it be if we discharge our duty well. Satisfied as we are of the correctness of our principles, and deeply impressed with their usefulness, we have lifted aloft our banner and will stand by it to the end.

This Lodge will require generous support. If the members are not regular in their attendance it cannot become a fruitful branch of the Order. The peculiar relation that this city bears to the surrounding country and to distant places renders it necessary that you should sustain yourselves in good style and with vigor. Travelers from all parts of the United States and from the British Provinces come to this region for business and for pleasure. Very many of these are Odd Fellows. Accustomed as they are when at home to regular attendance, they will like to avail themselves of the privilege of visiting. This has been done already to a considerable extent, and you have formed the acquaintance of members from a number of jurisdictions. The location of this Hall is a most desirable one for matters of this sort, and it is far more spacious than the rooms of many prosperous Lodges elsewhere.

The Heralds of the North, South, East, and West have solemnly proclaimed this place dedicated to Friendship, Love, Truth, Faith, Hope and Charity; having sprinkled the water, lighted the fire, scattered the wheat, and strown the flowers, which symbolize these cherished principles.

May the Supreme Ruler of the Universe ever bless and protect us, and may this Lodge, under the Divine favor, do its share in the beneficent labor of our Order.

At the conclusion of the address the Lodge arose and sang "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," after which the Chaplain pronounced the benediction, as follows:

"Now, unto Him, who is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy, and commend you and the whole family of man; and to Him, the only wise God, our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, now and forever. Amen."

Thanksgiving in the T. S. O. S.

"Thanksgiving" was celebrated for the third time in the Titusville Soldiers' Orphans' School with characteristic enthusiasm. The children assembled in the school room in the forenoon at 10½ o'clock. The exercises were opened by the school chanting the twenty-third Psalm, after which Professor Beistle read the proclamation of Governor Geary, and the circular letter addressed to the several schools throughout the State, ordering the day to be kept with appropriate ceremonies.

The ninety-fifth and ninety-sixth Psalm were read by G. S. Berry, Esq., and a few remarks made by him relative to the special reasons the school had for being thankful, the most prominent of which was that not a single death had occurred in the school during the past year. Prayer was offered and the entire school sang a Thanksgiving hymn with earnestness and feeling. Dr. Gray, member elect to the Legislature, being present, addressed the school very fitly on topics which the occasion and day brought forth. The children listened attentively and were much interested, feeling that a friend was with them, who would work for their welfare at the next meeting of the Legislature.

Lunch was brought to the school-room at 12 o'clock, of which all partook. The exercises were continued until one o'clock, with songs and hymns, when the children were dismissed. Between this and 3 o'clock the boys were engaged in the exciting and exhilerating game of foot-ball—a ball having been procured by Capt Spicer. Dinner was ready at three, and all the children sat down to a bountiful meal, in which the inevitable turkey figured very conspicuously. The teachers and employees of the institution attended to the wants of the children while eating, so that none were deprived of a seat at the first table. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in mutual congratulations and expressions of gladness, and the beaming countenances and smiling faces indicated great pleasure and contentment.

Short addresses were delivered in the evening by Prof. Beistle and Dr. Gray, while songs and recitations formed a prominent part of the evening's entertainment. The school choir deserves special commendation, and shows the amount of labor bestowed upon it by Prof. Schoolman. Invitations to the discharged pupils having been sent out, quite a number visited the school and apparently enjoyed themselves well with their old schoolmates. May the return of many a Thanksgiving find these Soldiers' Orphans as happy and prosperous as now.

Chase House not to be Removed

PLUMER, Pa., Nov. 23, 1870.

Editors Morning Herald:

Who knows so much more about our business than ourselves?

The Chase House will not be removed to Oil City, nor will it be taken down at all, or removed anywhere else; nor will it be closed on the 1st of January.

Since the Chase House was at Pleasantville, it has paid us well as an investment—better far, than at Pithole City, and better far than property in far more pretentious places at the time.

ON Thanksgiving Day a young deer made a successful run on the railroad track near Oleopolis, chased by a train of cars. In effecting his escape he dashed up a rather precipitous bank, but before reaching the top fell and rolled backward, breaking one of his forelegs. The cars rushed by, but the poor creature was discovered by a sportsman and chased to the bank of the river, where he plunged in and swam gallantly across.

THE M. E. SABBATH SCHOOL CONCERT.—This entertainment on Thanksgiving night, under the direction of Prof. S. H. Birdsall, drew an immense audience, and proved a thoroughly delightful affair. No amateur performance by the young people has created more enthusiasm. All the reserved seats were taken before the hall was opened—even standing room was at a premium also—and scores of persons went away, unable to secure admission. The cantata of the "Three Christian Graces" was very creditably rendered by about fifty children, and exhibited the painstaking instruction on the part of the tutor. The children were formed into three sides of a hollow square, the divisions representing respectively, Faith, Hope and Charity. Miss Daney Newton, the crowned impersonation of Charity, occupied a throne at the rear of the platform, surrounded by her followers, while the sister graces, Miss Lizzie Ketchum and Miss Katy Meade, were accorded a similar distinction on either side. All were appropriately attired and the effect was strikingly picturesque. The solos were creditably rendered in the main, and the choruses were heartily applauded.

Miss Maggie McMullen, whose singing was the feature of the evening, proved herself an accomplished vocalist, with a voice of great natural beauty, and a high degree of cultivation. She is a Miss of seventeen, possessing a pretty face, a slender, graceful figure, and a quiet, classic, and nonstrative style, that is not once winning and impressive. She was simply and becomingly dressed in a black silk and white over-skirt, and her entrance was greeted with enthusiastic applause. Although her first appearance before footlights, Miss Maggie was in nowise disconcerted. The cordial welcome seemed rather to inspire confidence, and she sang Verdi's "Rosy Morning o'er the Meadows" with an expressiveness of tone and manner truly wonderful for one of her youth and limited experience and training. The audience showed their appreciation of the performance by an immense burst of enthusiasm, when she sang "But just about a year ago," with peculiar sweetness and humor. At the close of the second act of the cantata, Miss McMullen again appeared, and sang a selection from Il Trovatore. This was a severe test of the range of her voice, (a pure soprano), and well calculated to display her talent for operatic music. It was rendered with great success, the higher tones being full and rich, and the long sustained notes being skillfully managed, and the whole characterized with great tenderness and fervor.

Mrs. S. C. Buckbee presided at the piano with very creditable success. Her solo was a most delightful and inspiriting performance, and elicited hearty applause.

The entertainment reflects credit upon Mr. Birdsall, and upon Mr. H. C. Bosley, superintendent of the school, and Mr. Will. A. Sands, stage manager of the occasion. The receipts were about $350.

THE BALL of the M. & B. Union, on Wednesday evening, was very largely attended, and netted a handsome sum for the benevolent fund of the Association. There were 112 couples upon the floor on one occasion, an indication that the Union was very fully represented. The total membership is now 75. The Union meets every Friday evening, and we are glad to know it is in a highly prosperous condition. Its objects are of a purely benevolent character, and the sick or unfortunate always find ready and efficient relief through its operations.

DANCING ACADEMY.—Attention is called to Prof. Ballou's notice, which will be found in another column. The Juvenile Class meet at two o'clock this afternoon. The Assembly at eight o'clock this evening.

BURNING ACCIDENT.—On Monday afternoon, Mr. Rufus Brown, who resides on the Ingersoll & Bronson lease, Sam. Boyd farm, met with a severe burning accident by an explosion of benzine. It appears he was engaged in cleaning the engine at one of the wells with benzine, when an explosion occurred, by which he was badly burned about the face, breast and arms. Fortunately no flame was inhaled inwardly, and he is in a fair way of recovery.—Pet. Centre Record.

CLOTHING--DRY GOODS.

A GREAT THING

FOR EVERYBODY TO KNOW IN THE

City of Titusville.

There are a great many men who order their Clothes

FROM OTHER CITIES!

because they think they get them Cheaper, but they are mistaken.

COME ONE, COME ALL, TO MY

MERCHANT TAILORING!

ESTABLISHMENT,

And Look at my Goods and Examine my Work, and then you will see that you get

and for the Same Price that you pay when you order from other Cities,

IF NOT CHEAPER!

It is true, I must pay Higher Wages for Tailors than Merchant Tailors in other Cities pay, but I keep only

First-Class Workmen;

But then, again, I save the High Wages, which a Cutter gets, as I Cut all Garments myself, therefore I can produce the of Garments, and as Cheap as any other Merchant Tailor in or out of Titusville. So don't send your Orders and Money out of your own Town, where you will be well Fitted with Good Goods, made up in the Style.
